DRY LEAD DIG AT PUBLIC

Bayford: they don't know meaning of congestion

THE Tory leader of Thanet council has been branded arrogant and patronising after questioning the worth of public consultation.

Cllr Bayford made the remarks while discussing the future of Margate seafront at a joint transportation meeting on Thursday, November 25. He said: "It's ridiculous – people in Thanet don't know the meaning of congestion. They don't know they are born.'

He continued: "We consult to death. I don't see why you should have to consult that widely. If you need to consult, boil it down to the key points because it rambles on and I can't see the point - experts have already worked out the major points of this.

BY FLORENCE TENNENT

"Keep it short and as simple as possible - we bend over backwards to ask everyone in Kent what they think of Margate.

"This new government has promised to cut down on public consultation - decisions should be left to elected members because that is what we have been elected for."

Peter Campbell, Labour councillor for Central Harbour, said: "I was simments and the attitude towards the people of Thanet that they reveal."

Clive Hart, Labour group leader, feels the comments reflect the attitude of the Tory council administration.

He said: "Apparently they think Thanet residents just don't understand matters and that they shouldn't be consulted so much. I have to say the comments appear somewhat patronising and, to an extent, even arrogant.

"Td say Cllr Bayford has got things completely wrong. Thanet residents most certainly do need consulting on issues affecting their lives. However,

Ezekiel: cash must be found for works on our seafront

BY FLORENCE TENNENT

SANDY Ezekiel, the former leader of Thanet council, has challenged Kent County Council to focus less on west Kent and insttead fund improvements to Margate seafront.

Cllr Ezekiel, speaking to the joint transportation board on Thursday last week, said: "We're going to ask for approximately 7 or 8 per cent of the highways budget. How is that split between east and west?

'If Kent County Council are serious about bringing Margate back to its heyday, as I believe they are, then take the budget from west Kent and put it into Margate.

These are the two poorest wards in the whole of the South East. We have to find the budget - and if projects in other districts need to be delayed by a year they have to be delayed by a year."

County Hall's favoured projects include a third Thames crossing, a changed road system at Dover and a parkway station at Manston airport.

Peter Campbell, Labour councillor for Central Harbour, said: "It's a blot on the whole scheme that there is no budget availability for a public realm scheme in Margate. Is there a secret fund? It seems we have blue-sky thinking and blue-sky financing."

The proposed redevelopment of Margate seafront could cost up to £8 million; the aim is to reunite pedestrians with the beach.

Current plans were met with 'tacit' approval from Thanet council and would involve narrowing the roads to two three-metre lanes along the length of Marine Terrace, removing bollards and railings, widening pavements and possibly introducing a central reservation.

Controversially, they would also see remodelling of the Station Road and clock-tower roundabouts into threeway traffic-light junctions, about which several councillors expressed strong reservations.

Conservative Michael Jarvis said: "I'm concerned there has already been a fiasco in the past over traffic lights - it's going to be very difficult to sell to the public without much more information, more discussion and more consultation."

Lights were removed from the clock-tower junction in 2005 after years of gridlock, but it has been emphasised that this scheme involves merging the two junctions into one, rather than leaving two T-junctions, as before.

Officers are working on a microsimulation model of Margate and Westwood to study the network implications of rerouteing traffic on the seafront road.

Find out more about grants and savings

THANET Local Board is giving you the chance to discuss saving money, funding and grant allocations with your county councillors.

Doors open at 6.30pm for a 7pm start at St Saviour's junior school in Westgate on Monday next week.

In addition to presentations on projects for this year and next, there will be an opportunity to ask questions about public services.

Youth council members will provide an update of their work and concerns. John Fowler from Kent Savers Credit Union will outline their financial support services and Nigel Turley, a Funding Buddies coordinator, will describe their work helping community groups find funding.

There will be an update on the work done by several projects before next year's grant recommendations

The Christmas celebrations kick off at 5pm on Friday, with a lantern and flag parade, late night shopping, a marching band and much more to mark the switching on of the town centre's Christmas lights.

On the day there will be a number of exhibitions to entertain people: Harbour Arm Gallery are welcoming Bits 'n Pieces, Margate Gallery is showcasing local talent, the Pie Factory keeps it hush with their exhibition Ssssh! and Marine Studios on Albert Terrace is opening Dark Nights, Bright Lights. The show will open on Friday with a piece entitled Thanetian Roulette by Mischievous Theatre.

Horticultural society continues to bloom

MINSTER and Monkton horticultural society is looking forward to a busy new year.

Denis Golder, their new vice-chairman and show secretary, will give a talk on daffodils at their next meeting in Minster village hall on January 19, with points won for the best daffodil photograph.

The group meets at 7.30pm every third Wednesday as well as hosting trips, shows, quiz nights and coffee mornings throughout the year.

Membership is £3 for the year or 50p per session.

A second showing has been arranged for 5pm on Sunday (December 5) at the same venue.

BEAUTIES: Bathing on the Lido in the 1950s

The film charts Thanet's history from the fifth century and includes previously unseen footage of Margate's lost pier in the early 70s, as well as visiting more recent subjects, such as the fight to save Broadstairs high street, the Manston debate and quizzing the politicians involved.

Ms Tongue said: "Anyone with an interest in the history or the future of Thanet should come to see this film.'

She invited all the district councillors and both Thanet MPs to both screenings but has been met with a "resounding silence" so far.
She said: "The film raises important issues about the governance of the isle - people really wanted councillors to be there to respond to their concerns."

The first Thanet on Film was screened for three months and Ms Tongue will schedule further showings if there is demand.

Hawkwind legend finds space at West Coast bar

Musician reminisces about his misspent youth

BY NICK AMES

FORMER Hawkwind star Nik Turner braved the winter snows to take the stage at the West Coast bar in Margate – his former hometown – and space-rocked the place.

Driving through the day from his home in north Wales, he performed in front of a crowd who seemed wholly familiar with his work.

CDs, books and records were all produced to be signed and Turner performed the honours with a smile.

Playing with his band Space Ritual – the name of one of his former group's albums – he was even joined on stage at the end by an 'alien'.

After a set from local act Aurora, Turner - a former Chatham House grammar pupil – led his band into some lengthy free-form pieces with him playing saxophone and singing.

He had earlier reminisced about his "misspent youth" in Margate and his continuing affection for the town.

He said: "1967 saw me working on the beach in Margate. It was full of speed freaks, mods, alcoholic daytrippers from east London and rockers on their big bikes.

"And me working on the seafront selling stuff, playing sax sometimes, hanging out with all sorts, and I eventually got bored so I went to Holland."

He had stayed in touch with the members of a band called The Famous Cure.

Though the band had disbanded by mid-1969 and Dave Brock – soon to join him in Hawkwind – went back to busking for a while, Brock wanted to start a new line-up.

When it finally came together, the name Group X was adopted. Turner heard of the new band and offered himself, and his new van, to ioin them as their roadie.

At a rehearsal he showed up with his saxophone, got invited to jam with them and immediately turned into an active band member.

The group even played the Isle of Wight Festival, where Turner was spotted by Jimi Hendrix, mainly because he was wearing a completely silver outfit with a painted face.

"He dedicated Foxey Lady to 'that silver cat', which was very nice," Turner said.

During the 70s the band established a following and a reputation for playing benefits for all sorts of causes – but Turner eventually left.

He said: "I left the band because I was bored with it, and I think it probably showed in what I was doing. There were certain people in the band who said that if I didn't leave, then they would. It seemed more important to the band, at that time, that I leave rather than them.
"Now with Space Ritual I am keeping the spirit alive – the original spirit of Hawkwind which I think has now been lost.

Congestion just 'a fact of life'

they deserve genuine consultation and not just the lip service all too often paid to them by this Conservative administration."

Cllr Bayford has defended his remarks.

He said: "I think, of course, we need to consult and give everyone the opportunity to give their views, but it seems to me that sometimes the process is exceptionally torturous and sometimes we ask people things when we already know what needs to be done.

"Over the years we seem to consult on everything we do. There has already been some consultation on the seafront scheme and there will be more.

He was resolute, however, that congestion is a fact to be accepted.

He said: "I don't believe congestion in Thanet is the problem people say it is. It's one of those issues people are quick to respond to, but congestion occurs wherever you have new developments."

Radio hoaxers target schools

BOGUS school closures reported on a radio station's website caused Sunday night chaos as parents, students and schools sought to clarify the truth.

Clarendon and Chatham grammar schools in Ramsgate, Hartsmar schools in Ramsgate, Harts-down technology college and Urs-uline College in Westgate were all falsely reported on KMFM's web-site as closing on Monday. Tanya Utton, headmistress at Ursuline College, said: "I am most concerned that someone was able to report several Thanet schools as closed. The local radio station made several announcements during the morning to let families know that the school swere open as usual."

The school closure site can be updated by school officials using an official password.

KMFM officials confirmed it was likely their site had been hacked and log-in details have been changed.

Luckily, schools were able to respond quickly to quash the Ms Utton said: "Parents were wonderful in checking with the school and I thank them for their understanding. We also phoned families of students who were not in first thing this morning in case they had not heard.

"KCC has contacted the local broadcaster and asked that measures are put in place so this does not happen again.'

Trust tops Dr Foster healthcare survey

PATIENTS living in east Kent get the best care in the country, according to a survey of the NHS.

The East Kent Hospitals University NHS Foundation Trust, which runs the William Harvey in Ashford, Kent and Canterbury, the QEQM in Margate, Buckland in Dover, and the Royal Victoria, Folkestone, came top of the Dr Foster survey.

The study, backed by Imperial College London and the Department of Health, measures the performance of NHS trusts and hospitals around the country.

Each year it looks at areas of patient care, such as preventing premature death, quality of life for people with long-term conditions and recovery from ill health or surgery. It also measures patients' experiences of their care.

One of the key areas the survey looked at is what is known as the Hospital Standardised Mortality Ratio (HSMR).

This is a broad measure across all activities of a hospital where the risk of death is significant. The average score for hospitals is 100. The East Kent Trust was given a score of 79, one of the lowest in the country.

Nineteen trusts around the country had a score higher than 100, meaning the death rate was higher than expected. Other areas of healthcare considered a good indicator of a hospital's performance include stroke care, orthopaedics, urology and patient safety.

The report said the trust had performed well across all criteria, especially as it was one of the largest in the country, serving 750,000 people.

It also praised it for employing new technology such as Telemedicine, which now meant people had a round-the-clock service.

Innovations

It also had a rapid response for scans when needed by patients and had introduced innovations such as the specialist heart attack centre at the William Harvey.
Stuart Bain, chief executive of the trust, said: "The success can be put down to a combination of high ambition by the board, good planning, and the dedication of the 7,000 staff who always go the extra mile.

"Safety and effectiveness have been the key drivers in directing investment in service change and this is reflected in our low HSMR and good infection prevention rates."

STATE OF THE ART: New swimming pool at Ramsgate Sports Centre will replace the old pool at Warre Recreation Ground

Planners to take plunge over start date for new pool

WORK on a new affordable BY FLORENCE TENNENT multi-million pool and spa to replace the 'tired' existing facility at Ramsgate could be under way before Christmas.

If Thanet councillors give plans the go ahead on Thursday, December 16, work will start immediately on the new pool and spa complex, built onto the side of Ramsgate Sports Centre.

The single-storey sunken extension will house a 25m, six-lane pool and a separate training pool, as well as a new reception, café and spa, offering four heat treatment rooms, a salt grotto, hydro pool, steam room, power showers and a foot spa.

A state-of-the-art toning suite, one of the first in Kent, will offer orthopaedically safe workouts for people with mobility problems.

Expected to take 13 months to complete, the pool could be open as early as Spring 2012, with the existing pool at Newington Road remaining open until then.

Martin Wise, council cabinet member for environmental services, said: "A new pool for Ramsgate has been a priority for some time. "Local people told us clearly that they wanted to keep two separate pools and, since then, we've been looking at how we can deliver what they want in the current economic climate. This new scheme allows us to provide that new pool, along with improvements to the sports centre and a new spa facility, which does not require funding from the

The deal has been brokered by Alliance Leisure, which has completed 85 similar projects in the UK and will take a share of any profits generated by the new facility.

Thanet Leisure Force, which currently runs the pool, will stump up £3.48 million investment, with the council guaranteeing the 20-year loan and providing a soft repayable fund of £250,000 in start-up costs.

Encouraged by the strong performance of the recently refurbished Hartsdown pool, which is hitting budget targets earlier than anticipated, officers believe the income generated from the spa and cafe will subsidise the costs of running a swimming pool. There are no plans to raise prices beyond inflation and any profits will be reinvested in leisure

Mark Seed, environmental services director, said: "To bring the old pool up to modern day standards would take as much money as building a new one and we would lose the benefits of a new build with energy saving utilities and a more convenient location. For the first time in this area we will have an affordable high-quality spa."

Staff from the existing pool will merge with those at the sports centre but thanks to the creation of new positions managers expect to generate more jobs and no redundancies. As the new pool doesn't rely on the sale of the old facility the council are free to consider user options, mothballing or disposal of the asset next year.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Church to light Christmas up

ST Paul's Church in Cliftonville is switching on its new Christmas tree lights tomorrow.

The lights will be turned on by Mick Tomlinson, Mayor of Margate, at 5:30pm on Thursday, December 2. Director Will Wollen and the cast of Pinocchio from the Theatre Royal Margate will be sampling the mince pies and hot drinks to the tunes of the Salvation Army band, and raffle tickets will be on sale for £1 a strip to help fund the decorations. The draw will take place at the Northdown Road winter community event at the Belle Vue pub on Saturday, December 11.

The Christmas beacon at the top of the church tower, the highest point in Cliftonville, has already been lit.

Clive Hart, ward councillor, said: "We'd like to thank Terry McElligot at St Paul's for all his help with our annual lighting display. This is our small way of saying thank you to residents for all their support throughout the year. Cllr Aldred, Cllr Clark and I wish all residents across Thanet a very merry Christmas."

Lorry-driver jailed over death

THE lorry-driver who knocked down and killed Margate postman Mick Garner has been sentenced to ten months in prison after admitting causing death by careless driving.

Steven Hole, 45, of Farm Avenue in Swanley, appeared at Canterbury Crown Court on Monday and was told he would serve at least five months, as well as receiving a three-year driving ban.

Hole's Iveco Eurocargo truck hit Mr Garner, 61, while he was cycling to work along Marine Terrace, Margate, at 3.45am on Friday, May 14.

The food is off at restaurant

CONTAMINATED food in a filthy storeroom was among health and safety horrors uncovered in a restaurant in Ramsgate.

The restaurant, which hasn't been named as investigations are still under way, was caught on Wednesday last week by Operation Cleansweep, a joint-venture by Thanet coun-cil, the police, the fire service, the border agency and community service organisers.

The business was ordered to destroy the food, including trays of cooked meat and dirty buckets of rice and beansprouts balanced next to bins and bags of rubbish.

Environmental officers returned two days later to find a deep clean had been completed.

Arts cuts 'threat to isle regeneration'

BY FLORENCE TENNENT

CUTS to Government funding for the arts could harm the isle's longawaited regeneration, a county politician has warned.

Kent Green Party chairwoman Dr Hazel Dawe said: "Culture will never be considered a frontline service either by local or central government, but the cuts made to public spending will hit communities, tourism and

Greens fear Government cuts of 24 per cent to culture spending could hit core facilities in town centres, leading to fewer visitors, falling sales and shop closures.

Dr Dawe said: "Since shop-site vacancies are high in many towns - about 25 per cent in Thanet - culture and arts cuts are bad news for struggling retailers.

"The Turner Contemporary has had its budget cut before it's even been opened. Attempts to develop a creative quarter in Margate may run aground due to lack of core funding to start the process off."

But Laura Sandys, Thanet South's Conservative MP, denied the cuts would affect regeneration on the isle.

She said: "There has been an unprecedented investment in culture in Thanet through the Turner Contemporary - tens of millions and while £37,000 hasn't been allocated more recently, the cuts are not going to diminish the extraordinary impact the gallery will have on the isle. Cultural and historic attractions are making waves in Thanet and east Kent and I believe we will thrive.'

IN THE FRAME: Turner Contemporary in Margate

A Destination History event organised by Ms Sandys last month showcased four emerging attractions set to boost Thanet tourism.

Turner Contemporary, the Hornby visitor centre, Quex Museum and the Secret Gardens in Sandwich were highlighted in a meeting designed to encourage small businesses to lok at ways to benefit next year.

Ms Sandys said: "It was an extremely positive meeting. People went away with great ideas on how they can piggyback on the new level of attention Thanet will attract.

"The next few years will be crucial to establishing ourselves as a premier visitor location and we have everything to play for.

"Building on our status as one of the 12 most exciting locations in the world, we have an opportunity to boost tourism.'

QUESTION & ANSWER

ETHERTON

Can you tell us about yourself and your background?

I originally trained and worked as an architect in London. I then spent two years in advertising in the Far East, returning in 1992 to take masters degrees in art and architecture and then media production. I exhibited as a digital-media installation artist and taught on fine-art courses at UCA. I have 15 years' experience as an independent cameraman/director and producer.

What is Beeping Bush and how are you involved?

Beeping Bush is a community arts and digital-media organisation run by Chris Cordwell and I. We set it up in 2003 with five others. We are the Screen South community network film-delivery partner for Kent and Medway, supported by the UK Film Council.

We're based in Margate Old Town. The focal point of Beeping Bush is the Community Pharmacy Gallery, an exhibition and venue space for artists, film-makers, community groups and education. Above the gallery is the production arm, encompassing full video and What recent projects have you been involved in?

We have just screened Kent's biggest film festival, our annual 2 Days Later shortfilm-making competition. It was screened at the Theatre Royal Margate on Halloween and involved 500 participants. In the eight years since we started it, more than 430 films have been made for us. It's a great free day of entertainment, and film-makers come from all over the UK and beyond. This year we had four Thanet film productions in the short-listed screenings that went down well with the judges and audience and won several awards.

Any exciting ideas in the pipeline?

We are to about to launch our comedy-film-We are to about to launch our collection. A Days Laughter 2011, to be screened at the Theatre Royal for developed as a April Fools' Day. It was developed as a response to the interest generated by 2 Days Later. We get more than 800 international inquiries about each competition every year.

Are arts projects like this important for the isle?

Margate is being positioned as the creative A force in a region that is perceived by the rest of the country - and even by some of its own inhabitants - as ugly and rife with deprivation, a view somewhat ironically perpetrated by recent films such as Margate Exodus.

However, with the Turner Contemporary, the Creative Quarter and events such as Margate Rocks, the town has a growing reputation for creativity coupled with a strong tradition of community arts. Our concept is the only catalyst of film creativity in east Kent.

The competition does not simply import a selection of themed films into a local independent cinema for the weekend and call it a festival. Local and national and international filmmakers are out there making specific films for a specific event in east Kent.

How does a film festival complement the region?

A festival is an important ingredient in the community mix. Our events are organised by people who are at the heart of this creative community and understand it.

Beeping Bush is significant to the regeneration of the area and this is reflected throughout the work and local support received. We ensure our events are accessible, visible, relevant and that we communicate with people, listening to ideas, looking out for opportunities for growth. This flavours the whole event and, although its scope is international in terms of entries and participation, it very much belongs to the people of Margate and Thanet.

How can people get involved?

We regularly hold free one-day introduc-A tion to DV film-making workshops in the Margate gallery and across Kent and Medway.

We also have a programme of work experience for school pupils, graduates and the longterm unemployed.

Rail price hikes unacceptable, blasts MP Gale

PRICE hikes for Southeastern railusers in the New Year have been widely slated.

Regulated fares are rising by as much as 12.8 per cent in east Kent from Sunday, January 2.
Roger Gale, the MP for Thanet North, has described the "swingeing" increases as "an absolute disgrace".

He said: "As far as I am concerned they can kiss goodbye to any thought of a franchise renewal. For the fourth year running, my constituents will be paying more for less.

"Network Rail's 'upgrading' of signalling and points is way behind schedule and no improvements are planned for the line between Ashford and Thanet.

"Southeastern's 'fast link' is a bad joke, as journeys take longer and cost more."

Charles Horton, Southeastern managing director, said: "Nobody likes to see prices rise, but it is the stated policy of the Government to move the cost of travelling by train towards passengers and away from the taxpayer.

There are only two sources of funding for railway journeys: taxpayer subsidy and passengers' fares. The amount of taxpayer subsidy we receive from the Government reduces year on year, and we need to raise the fares to make up the difference.

BY FLORENCE TENNENT

An anytime day-return from Ramsgate to London will rise from £47.80 to £57.10, with an annual pass going up by £496. The high-speed fares will rise by £5 and an annual pass will now cost £5,240, up £592 from £4,648.

Off-peak and saver fares will be slightly less dramatically hit; an off-peak return to London from Margate will cost £2.20 more, a super offpeak return £1.40 more and an off-peak saver return will remain unchanged at £30.10.

Car-parking rates will also be affected from Tuesday, January 4, with details available from stations in advance.

Across Kent, fares will increase by an average of 7.8 per cent.

Nick Chard, Kent County Council cabinet member for environment, highways and waste, said: "I am dismayed at the high level of fare increases being faced by Kent commuters

RAGING ROGER: The MP for Thanet North, Roger Gale

"While we all understand the need for a reasonable fare increase, we have not seen suffi-cient benefits in terms of reduced overcrowding and better services. We are preparing a Kent rail action plan to make sure the next rail franchise, due to start in 2014, reflects what residents and commuters want.'

However, it is the particularly sharp rises in east Kent which have prompted most outrage.

Mr Gale said: "Why should people pay to subsidise a service that does not serve their needs? "East Kent hosts the highest levels of social deprivation in the South East and some of the highest in the country and yet while affluent Brighton gets away with a 7 per cent increase we find our travellers paying retail price index plus 3 per cent, plus a further 6 per cent.

That is wholly unacceptable. We are living in Dick Turpin territory.'

Tree of Light will help hospice fund

SHOPPERS are invited to sponsor a memorial light on the East Kent Rotary Clubs' Tree of Light, raising money for the Pilgrims Hospices palliative-care

Each light on the tree at Westwood Cross shopping centre costs as little as £5 and can be dedicated in memory of a loved one, with their name and a short message displayed beside the tree and online at www.thanet-tree-of-light.co.uk. Chris Hedges, of Westgate and Birchington Rotary Club, said: "Other communities support Rotary Trees of Light and we met with a very good response last year."

Last year the Tree of Light raised almost £1,000.

To sponsor a light, go to www.thanet-tree-of-light.co.uk or email enquiries@ thanet-tree-of-light.co.uk.

Driver fined £200 for an illegal move

STUDENT nurse Juri Juzar thought he was being a responsible citizen when he overtook a learner driver on the inside lane – but police didn't agree with him.

Juzar, 29, of North Road, Ramsgate, was stopped on the Thanet Way, near Herne Bay, and charged with driving without care and attention.

In a letter to Canterbury magistrates, Estonian-born Juzar said he was travelling at 75mph when he came up behind the black learner car and had to pull in.

Juzar was fined £200 with five points put on his licence. He was ordered to pay £35 costs plus £15 victim surcharge.

BREAK TIME

Year 6 wonderkids are the key players

A GROUP of computer-proficient year 6 pupils in Ramsgate has been tackling the work of 15-year-olds.

The 30 pupils from Dame Janet and Newlands primary schools have designed automated pooper-scoopers and homework robots with Stephen Miles, Marlow Academy's ICT teacher.

Mr Miles said: "This year we have tried to concentrate on the key stage three curriculum, so they are learning things normally taught to years 7 and 8 stu-

"The truth of the matter is that a lot of these year 6 pupils could be capable now of sitting for the exam qualifications normally taken by year 9 and year 10 students," he said.

Pupils' valuable life lessons on the pitch

FOOTBALL-players from Ellington and Hereson School are taking their losses on the chin.

The year 7 and 11 squads are earning a reputation for determination and fair play, while the year 10 team rallied after trailing 7-2 at half-time to reigning Kent Cup champions Dover Grammar.

They held their own in the second half and scored another goal as they finally went down 9-3.

Coach Alan Amos said: "We would rather see that real desire to compete fairly and the will to win than a meagre, dull, soulless victory - it teaches our boys so much more."

Isle leads way in preparing youngsters for workplace

■ BY FLORENCE TENNENT

ISLE schools are setting the standard for work-related learning in Kent.

Hartsdown technology college, the federation of Ramsgate grammar schools and St George's foundation school were among those to receive a platinum-partner school certificate during Global Entrepreneurship week, which ran from Monday to Sunday, November

Every school in Thanet with the exception of Ellington and Hereson has now been presented with the award from the Education Business Partnership Kent, which commends an academic year dedicated to fostering employability and enterprise through work experience and innovative experiences for young people.

Anne McNulty, executive director for EBPK, said: "The standards are set by the department of education and it really is the highest accolade to Thanet schools for their exceptional performance - every single school has raised the bar this year. Even the one school which missed out on the award still offers work experience

"Thanet is really strong because they have a long history of engaging with employers and as a collaborative they really stand out, coming together for the recent Skillsfest which saw hundreds of students browsing stalls from some 80 employers."

Ms McNulty was keen to emphasise the importance of giving young people a preview of life in employment and all the possibilities available to them.

She said: "These work opportunities are particularly important for youngsters who might not be going on to university or further training as it's about all the skills in life that employers are looking for.

What Thanet head-teachers are so brilliant at is knowing exactly what is required for each pupil – they come to us and say we would like to work with a company that offers this, this and this, be it retail, biomimicry or modern languages.

Andy Somers, Hartsdown principal, described the award as "a great honour".

He said: "We work hard to instil a sense of entrepreneurial skills in our young people as they head towards the global marketplace they will occupy once they have left university, college and training.

"EBPK is a great partner to work with and we are pleased to support their commitment."

Is it because of going unnoticed in a large school or a large class size?

Is your child lacking the confidence to flourish?

At Dover College, we are as keen as any other school to cater for the most able pupils and do it well. However, our recent inspection highlighted our great ability as a school to enable our more average pupils to achieve far better than their potential suggested on entry. By offering boys and girls timely affirmation and appropriate challenges in a caring environment, many of them surprise their parents and, more importantly, themselves with their achievements.

Dover College welcomes pupils at any time of the year if there is a place available.

Leader Carter's second apology for poor report

BY STEVE KNIGHT

KENT County Council leader Paul Carter says he was unaware how poorly run the authority's childprotection service is.

Last week, County Hall's most senior politician was forced to issue an apology after a damning Ofsted report rated the safe-guarding and looked-after children services at KCC as "inadequate".

Areas of concern raised after the inspection include the management and supervision of services, low educational attainment of looked-after children, high number of cases not receiving quality assessments, and social workers with high case-loads.

In an interview with KOS Media, Cllr Carter admitted he only now appreciated the full scale of the problem.

He said. "The service is under significant pressure, but I think the report highlights issues that are more severe than I would otherwise have been aware of. For example, the corners that are having to be cut to keep their heads above water and the paperwork that is not being kept in order."

Hindsight

When asked if he could have recognised the failings of the service earlier, Cllr Carter replied: "Hindsight is always invaluable, but none of the boards we've put together have raised alarm bells in the way Ofsted has.

"Our track record in this area is good, and six years ago we went to Swindon and helped them turn their social-care services around."

The social-work industry has faced intense scrutiny since the tragic death of 17-monthold Baby P in Haringey, north London, in November 2008. Cllr Carter admitted his authority had struggled to cope with the increase in referrals since that time, which average about 2,000 a month.

The county also has the added responsibility of 900 asylum-seeking children as well as about 1,500 looked-after youngsters placed in Kent by other local authorities.

Cllr Carter said: "We've been lobbying Government over the last 12 to 14 years and telling them enough is enough – other councils must start placing vulnerable young people closer to their parental homes

Cllr Carter added that it was proving difficult to attract the best social-workers to Kent since the Baby P tragedy.

He said: "We've recruited from overseas, but they have particular training needs in order for them to become top social-workers.

NO GUARANTEES: Kent County Council chief Paul Carter

"We are dependent on new staff when the preference would be for experienced staff." The Ofsted inspection was carried out just two months after the watchdog warned that children were at risk due to inadequate and late assessments by KCC's social services.

Earlier this year the authority was forced to issue a public apology after an inexperienced social-worker failed to act on a warning about Tunbridge Wells resident Christopher Sellman, who went on to kill his baby daughter.

The report also highlights concerns about access to child and adolescent mental-health services, a high number of "inappropriate" referrals from other agencies, and insufficient use of early intervention support.

"We obviously try to avoid tragic incidents happening, but to guarantee they never will would be inappropriate," said Cllr Carter.
"But despite the flak social-workers have had to put up with over the years, the number of child deaths nationally over the last five to 20 years has continued to go down."

An improvement steering group has now been set up to oversee immediate action. It is chaired by KCC's cabinet member for children, Sarah Hohler, and includes cross-party members, senior managers, partners from the NHS and police.

"I would like to apologise again to young people and their families who haven't had the quality of service that should be expected of us," said Cllr Carter.

"We've now got to make sure we've got competent staff with the right IT systems to support them, and that the checks and balances are carried out as effectively as they can be.

"Ofsted will be back in a year and I am sure there will be a substantial improvement."

Carnival court joins Disneyland contest

RAMSGATE carnival court travelled to Disneyland in a bid to capture the UK Carnival Court Crown.

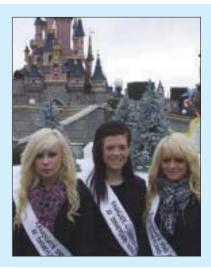

Miss Ramsgate, 15-year-old Ellie Rigden, and her two princesses Emma Pidduck, 16, and Vennessa Leppard, 18, were presented with their sashes by the ship's captain on the ferry en route to Paris last month.

The three spent the next two days exploring the resort with 34 other contestants, as well as taking part in the Disney parade.

The awards evening took place on Thursday, November 4. The court didn't win but were told they were worthy contenders.

The court has been serving since March and the next selection dance is on March 4, 2011.

RUNNING ON EMPTY? Isle MP Roger Gale

No truck with Gale's distasteful opinions

I found MP Roger Gale's views about foreign trucks using our roads very distasteful.

Do British truckers run back from Europe with empty fuel tanks so they can buy some of the costliest diesel in Europe?

No they do not, so why should foreign vehicles feel obliged to do so?

Only greedy successive British governments have maintained the high fuel taxation and put our own haulage industry at a commercial disadvantage

Charging foreign vehicles to use our roads, of course they would not reciprocate!

Are British right-hand-drive vehicles more accident-prone abroad - if so, what is Mr Gale doing about this?

Or does that not matter as there are no votes in it for him?

Foreign vehicles may cause more accidents pro rata than English vehicles, but could that be more down to British drivers not observing (foreign number plate, sign writing on truck etc) that it is a non-British vehicle and being a bit more cautious.

He also suggests that foreign drivers be detained until their case comes to court and insurance claims settled - that could take months or years.

Would he suggest similar imprisonment for British drivers

Perhaps it would be more helpful if Mr Gale would put some effort into providing more parking places with decent facilities – after all, it is governments that have decided fixed driving/rest periods for drivers

They may not speak our language, but they are just normal people with families, just trying to do a job of work, and should be treated with common decency as any person should be.

We don't really need to listen to Labour leader Ed Miliband for four years, says Gary Wright

LABOUR leader Ed Miliband chose Gillingham as the place to convince the country he is the man who can build a party people will want to vote for again.

I was surprised he chose Kent. No one could see the county as a Labour stronghold, but by the same token it's counties like Kent where he will have to convince people he has something to offer.

At the moment it really doesn't matter what Labour says it would do on this, or what its policy is on that the party isn't in power, so why should anyone listen?

Red, as he's affectionately known, has other problems, too. The mess inherited by David Cameron and Nick Clegg was bigger than anyone could have imagined. So, criticism by Ed and his shadow cabinet is easily overcome: Labour would have had to do the same, or it's Labour's fault anyway.

My gut feeling is the party is over-reacting to its general election defeat with its new-found taste for humble pie, admissions of how terrible and arrogant it became and beating itself up to win our love again.

It's pretty simple, really. Firstly, people had had enough of Gordon Brown. Despite being the man who found a way through the banking crisis for world leaders, he was also responsible for getting Britain too deeply into the mess in the run-up to it. Plus he wasn't good on telly and seemed a bit of an angry bully off it.

Secondly, people had had enough of Labour in power. It was indeed time for change.

Ed wants to chuck out everything and start with a clean sheet, including keeping the 50 pence tax rate for the wealthy; marching with students on Whitehall (unless he's doing something else) and supporting middle-income workers earning between £16,000 and £40,000. Or maybe £50,000, he's not sure yet.

Instead of dumping New Labour ideals (socialism no, market economy yes), Ed might be able to avoid getting himself in such a mess by simply taking the best of what he already has.

It is no use returning to the Punch and Judy politics of the Thatcher years. Labour is in opposition. Ed says it will take two years to make his party electable, so get on with scrutinising what the Coalition does and highlighting its weaknesses. Better still, ensure your MPs represent constituents properly – which is their job, after all. That's the way to get re-elected. Ed arrived in Gillingham on Saturday promising to listen. Five days before, he'd told MPs being in opposition was "crap". I suspect they'll get used to it, though, and it may not be so crap for us.

His biggest personal worry is big brother David, still smarting from losing the leadership race. He has been thanking everyone who did support him. A cynic might suggest the underlying message is: I hope I can count on you next time'.

But most of us don't need to listen to Ed until four years' time... when the next general election is due.

all been very slow in reaching this

On December 9, 2002, (report to cabinet) our then Labour administration had almost moved to this phase following considerable discussion with those involved in provision of recreation.

As cabinet member for tourism and leisure, I had a small working party investigating the possibility of a new swimming pool complemented possibly by an icerink using shared technology.

Unfortunately, Labour lost control of Thanet council in 2003 and we only have to look around Thanet to see that everything from shelters to loos to Dreamland has been allowed to fall into disrepair and disuse.

Over the eight years the costs have escalated and cynical approaches that raise hopes as we approach the 2011 local elections don't go unoticed. Please just get on with it, Thanet council!

Cliftonville has similarly been ravaged by these vandals. Every house along the Thanet frontage is at risk. Many could easily be converted into flats, but no.

And why? Because these carpetbaggers can put 10 flats in a newbuild for every six in a conversion.

I've been in these new apartments. You can touch the ceiling without a ladder, the rooms are tiny and the feeling of claustrophobia is quite intense.

The local planning office is hogtied by these applications. If the property-lifters are refused, they go to the Planning Inspectorate in Bristol who, for some unaccountable reason, seem very accommodating towards propertydevelopers but not to local people's sense of ethics and style.

Perhaps our local Members of Parliament can act before Thanet's rich architectural heritage is lost forever. Got the time to wait?

ID cards battle over but the war goes on

ID cards are being scrapped and with them the National Identity Register and the ContactPoint Children's database - a success for NO2ID, and I would like to publicly thank all those who supported and helped with our campaign - not just in my own branch but across east and mid-Kent.

So, is it all over? No, even though we may no longer be out on the streets with our stalls.

A bureaucratic obsession with ID and information-sharing goes on, and so do we.

Your finances, your travel by plane or car, who you call and email, soon your medical records.. all are starting to be captured and made available for 'mining'

A 2009 report looked at 46 big Government database projects. It found that more than half damage personal privacy or create other risks. Only two of those have since been cancelled.

We define the Database State as the trend to manage society by collecting data, mass surveillance... an authoritarian oversight of all aspects of our lives.

NO2ID continues to campaign against state identity-management and the abuse of personal information, and for individual control of what is private.

Our current campaigns concern a proposed centralised electoral register with local-authority powers to cross-match data to track those who don't register; medical confidentiality and the NHS Spine (not yet rolled out in Kent but coming); tracking travellers through e-passports and e-borders; abuse of DNA records; snooping on internet and telephone use; and police logging of all car journeys using ANPR cameras.

Government needs information to work, but it always takes and uses much more than it needs.

All squeeze facts out of you and force others to provide more. Just for the file. You may have to deal with Government, but you can't say what it can do with that file.

The Database State means state control of personal identity - with or without ID cards.

Ian Taylor NO2ID coordinator (Dover)

Climate is right for march on London

It is vital that Kent people attend the Climate March on Saturday (December 4), assembling at midday at Speakers' Corner, Hyde Park.

The scientific and political consensus about the need to deal with human-induced climate change has never been wider than

If we reduce emissions, insulate our buildings and introduce safe energy technologies, we can employ thousands of people and resist climate change at the same time.

Climate change means more moisture is held in the atmosphere, creating a likelihood of more extreme weather events.

Kent's coastline and estuaries are very vulnerable to significant changes unless cuts of about 90 per cent in greenhouse-gas emissions are achieved by 2050.

But Kent County Council's Local Transport Plan does not even propose measures to cut traffic year on year to cut emissions.

Only 14 out of 27 EU countries are likely to meet their current emissions targets.

EU leaders have agreed the major step of seeking cuts in the two fastest-growing sectors of greenhouse-gas emissions – aviation and shipping – but so far without resources to achieve this. We have to do better.

Students could pay a big price for online TV

Now freshers week is over and thousands of students are settling into their studies, TV Licensing is issuing a reminder to students to ensure that they are correctly licensed if they watch TV online.

It's now far more common to own a laptop/PC (99 per cent) in university halls than a traditional television set (51 per cent).

In fact, research suggests that of the 84 per cent of students in halls who use their laptop or PCs to watch TV online, 59 per cent watch live TV as it is broadcast and so require a TV licence.

It is important that students are aware if they need a licence, as it's not worth risking a prosecution and fine of up to £1,000.

The law is simple – if you watch or record programmes online at the same time as they are shown on TV, then you need a TV licence.

For more information, please visit www.tvlicensing.co.uk/studentinfo or phone 0300 790 6090.

Labour group leader puts family before Parliamentary ambitions

■ BY FLORENCE TENNENT

CLIVE Hart, councillor and leader of the Thanet Labour group, has quashed rumours that he plans to stand for Parliamentary election.

Cllr Hart has been repeatedly asked whether he will compete to be the Labour prospective candidate for Thanet South.

He said: "I wish to make it clear I have no intention of entering that selection process.

"The birth of my grandson this week has confirmed for me what I have felt for a long time now - that for me personally there are more important things in life."

He feels the campaign would take too much of a toll upon his personal time.

He said: "I love my role as a councillor and, despite having been extremely busy at both district and county levels over the past eight years, I have always been able to maintain a wonderful work/life balance.

"I am extremely fortunate that the balance in my life is just right, and in my opinion no job is worth destroying that balance.

Cllr Hart says he is still fully committed to his work as a Thanet councillor.

FAMILY MATTERS: Clive Hart says that maintaining work/life balance outweighs his political aspirations

He said: "I do have two current leadership objectives: one, to be the best grandfather ever. Two, to win back control of Thanet council for Thanet Labour group.

"As long as folk will elect me, I will continue to strive to be the very best local councillor I possibly can be, and even if they don't I'll always continue my local voluntary work."

Weather warnings as snow hits isle

SEVERE weather warnings were issued as snow hit the isle (yesterday) Tuesday morning.

The Met Office issued a heavy-snow warning across the county as traffic slowed to a crawl and drivers battled through up to 15 centimetres of snow on hills.

All main roads were still open yesterday morning and there were no reports of any major incidents.

Students will pad up with the stars

ERIC Clapton, McFly and Harry Potter actor Daniel Radcliffe are among celebri-ties tipped to be part of an all-star cricket team taking on isle students.

The match will see pupils from St

Lawrence College in Ramsgate go head to head with charity team Bunbury to raise money for Children In Need.

But the students have their own secret weapon, with former cricketers Michael Vaughan, Andrew Flintoff, Ronnie Irani, Darren Gough and Steve Harmison joining their team.

The match – the date of which is to be arranged - is all down to the owner of the Planet Rock radio station, Malcolm Bluemel, who won a Children In Need auction on Radio 2, bidding £65,000 to play cricket against Bunbury.

Mr Bluemel, 57, said his son, who is a pupil at St Lawrence and an avid crick-eter, told him about the auction and he got carried away.

County Hall wants extra £25m in savings 'shock'

FINANCE chiefs at County Hall have revealed public services will come under even more pressure with an additional £25 million needed in savings over the next two years.

The authority had initially forecast a £136m budget shortfall for 2011-13, but now predictions of Government grant reductions combined with additional spending pressures have pushed the figure up to more than £161m.

The amount forms part of the £340m savings needed at Kent County Council over the next four years. It is likely to mean that residents are asked to pay for some services they previously received for free.

Shortfall

Authority bosses had not expected such a large shortfall in the first two years after councils nationwide had been told to expect Government grant cuts of 7 per cent every year for the next four years.

KCC cabinet member for finance John Simmonds said the higher percentages came as a shock after lower predictions were announced at a KCC meeting in October.

"What took us by surprise was we were expecting a grant reduction of 7.25 per cent in the first year, but it is just over 10.1 per cent for 2011-12," he said.

"For 2012-13 it is 8.6 per cent; in the third year 3.3 per cent; and then 7.9 per cent. It puts pressure on us because around 18 per cent is going to come out in the first two years. It's accelerated the savings we were going to make over the four years.

BY MARIJKE COX

Cllr Simmonds admitted it was going to be difficult to take money out of the existing budget. "We've already had £15.5m knocked out this year. We've got some considerable pressures,"

A report setting out the council's overall financial challenge was discussed by cabinet members on Monday, two weeks before the Government announces exactly how much KCC will get in grants. The report looks at "unavoidable" budget pressures and outlines expected reductions. Cllr Simmonds said the council had looked at every one of the hundreds of services it provided, how they were delivered, and what customers expected.

He said residents could have to start paying for some services that were previously paid for by the council - but it was too early to say which services would be hit.

"We need to look at things that people value and what things we can cut back on," he said.

"The reorganisation of the authority and how we carry out business will also help produce an economy. Levels of staffing are already being reduced by us not filling jobs or vacancies."

He stressed that children's social services, elderly provision and adult social services were a key priority for the council. KCC is currently considering whether to close a number of council-run care homes for elderly people.

"The number of referrals after the Baby P case have gone up because people are taking no chances, which puts KCC under tremendous pressure," Cllr Simmonds said.

"We've also got a rapidly-growing adult population. One of the most expensive things we do is elderly assessments to see if they qualify for support and how much they get.

Painful

"This is done by the Department For Work And Pensions, but they won't disclose the information to us, so we also have to do the assessments. If we could work together we could save money here."

Cllr Simmonds said district and borough councils would find the grant reductions 'extremely painful" and admitted KCC was luckier due to its large size.

"If we can weather the next few years hopefully then we'll have smoother waters," he said. "Locally people are aware of the changes. Communities can help by looking at some of the things we do and help provide this on a smaller level. We have considerable voluntary input in Kent."

Take a walk on city's wild side

CANTERBURY GHOST TOURS

Start from Alberrys Wine Bar, St Margaret's Street, Canterbury

A BRUSH with the paranormal when he was young sparked John Hippisley's interest in ghosts, and it has continued into later life.

John leads the ghost walks which take place through the streets of Canterbury all year round.

The walks have fed John's interest over the years, but for him, the fascination started many years ago. He takes up the story.

"One night, when I was away at school in Goudhurst, my best friend Miles and I decided we would run away to Florida, as 13-year-old boys do, and I went to meet him at the bike sheds in the night but he never turned up.

"I waited until midnight and gave up and went up to bed. Then in the middle of the night, at about 4.30am, I was woken up by Miles, shaking me and telling me to get a move on and to get up and come with him.

"I was fed up with it all by that time, and told him to go away, that we were supposed to leave at 9.30pm, not now, but he kept saying "we gotta go, we gotta go". I told him to go and send me a postcard and went back to sleep.

"Anyway, I just presumed he'd gone, and didn't think much of it until the next day when the police arrived at the school, and told us a boy had been killed after being hit by a truck.

"It turned out to be Miles, of course, and it had taken place on the A28 at 4.30am, when I was talking to him. He had actually left as planned on his own, without me and been killed. He had walked for miles and miles.

"I'm convinced it wasn't a dream, and when I met his father at the funeral he had had the same kind of experience. He'd also been woken up by Miles in the night, and by the time he'd gone out to follow him he'd vanished, and there was no sign of him.

"As well as me, other boys in our dormitory saw him and heard him that night. I believe it was what is known as a doppelganger, a crisis apparition that many people see. It is almost as if the deceased is given a short period to visit their friends and loved ones before they are gone forever.

John says Canterbury has a rich history of ghostly goings-on to tell people about, and he has even written a book on the subject, entitled Haunted Canterbury.

The tours are full of those spooky tales mixed in with the city's rich history, and take about 90 minutes to complete.

All manner of spooky tales trip from John's tongue as he wander the streets with his lantern, top hat and cape during the tours, that will send a shiver down your spine.

For a time, John ran them to raise money for the Friends of the Marlowe Theatre, and managed to raise £1,000 for the cause.

They begin at Alberry's wine bar and cost £9 for adults, £8 concessions and £7 for children.

Deals for groups and tours that include a meal at a restaurant are also available.

John said: "At this time of year, when the nights are cold and dark, people's thoughts always turn more towards this sort of thing, so if you are interested then do come along.'

MY PASSION, SIZEN AND MORGLBL

Sunday, December 5, Quarterhouse, Folkestone

IT'S metal night at the Quarterhouse, when these bighitters roar into town.

It's the last night of a national tour, so all three bands will be wanting to finish with a flourish.

My Passion, nominated for Best British Newcomer at the 2010 Kerrang! Awards, are promoting their new album, and are renowned for their tight and energetic performances.

Morglbl, featuring one of the best guitar players in France, the virtuoso Christophe Godin, are also making a stir in hard rock circles.

Bassist Ivan Rougny also has a unique style of playing and pushes the boundaries.

Sizen, meanwhile, have received rave reviews from Metal Hammer, Rock Sound, Big Cheese and Power Play, topped off by a 4 'K' review from Kerrang magazine for their debut album What Do You See?

As a one-off special, Sizen will be joined by Sally Jo, six-string metal violinist and Sizen Shadow Orchestra. Support for the three main acts comes from I.R.I.S and Colt 44.

Tickets are £8 in advance or £10 on the door. Call 01303858500 or visit www.quarter-house.co.uk to book. Over 16s

CUT A SHINE WINTER HOEDOWN

Saturday, December 4, Astor Theatre, Deal

SMUGGLERS Records Present an evening with their friends, associates and cronies.

On Saturday it's the Cut A Shine Collective Winter Hoedown, featuring soulgrass band Kidnap Alice.

The seven-piece, who hail from Hackney in London, blend soul, bluegrass, and old time influences to make their own special sound and to bridge the gap between vintage rhythm and blues and Appalachian mountain music.

They have played at Glastonbury, and the the LoveBox, Green Man and Bestival festivals among others. Featured are Joe Buirski in banjo, Joe Hymas on mandolin, Felix Vandersluis, Jerry Bloom on fiddle, Ben Gallon on guitar, Danimal Kuper on accordion and Alice Ballantine on vocals and guitar. There'll even be a prize for the best redneck outfit, so grab a partner and swing on down to the Barn Dance. Tickets are £8 in advance £10 on the door and the fun starts at 7.30pm.

Visit www.theastor.org for more information and to book, or call 01304 370220.

Friday, December 31, The Kings Hall, Beacon Hill, Herne Bay

SEE in the new year in style with one of Kent's top soul bands. Rubber Biscuit are holding a holiday hootenanny to see out 2010 and see in 2011.

An evening of drinking, dancing and merry-making will make this one party not to be missed.

The band have been regulars on the South East's gig scene since 1992, and played all over the world.

The aim is to get everyone in the room up and dancing, with their infectiously energetic performances. Having sold out Canterbury's Marlowe Theatre on a number of occasions, Rubber Biscuit has a deserved reputation for going that extra mile to offer something different to local music fans.

This year they have entertained thousands at various gigs across the county and their Christmas shows at the King's Hall go down well.

The 500 capacity venue is usually full with a fantastic crowd, all keen to see what surprises the band has in store.

The band hope that the move to

New Year's Eve will generate an even greater party atmosphere and promise a night to remember - the perfect way to greet 2011.
Tickets are £15 each, doors open at 7.30pm. Book online at kingscaterers.co.uk or call 01227 373322.

PINOCCHIO

Thursday, December 9 to December 27 Theatre Royal, Margate

A NEW family musical of the famous story of the wooden boy with the lengthening nose comes to Thanet for a lengthy run at the Theatre Royal. This is a show full of warmth, wit and wonderful characters, stunning sets and fabulous costumes.

The old woodworker Geppetto decides to create a puppet of his own – an obedient and well-behaved son. But Pinocchio has other ideas, and becomes caught up in a series of adventures that land him in trouble. This full-scale mini-operetta comes from the same great team that brought you last year's hugely popular Snow Queen and the terrific Ali Baba.

There are no performances on December 19, 20, and 25. Tickets cost £14 for adults, £12.50 senior citizens, £10 children for the 10am and 1.30pm shows, but increase for the shows at 2pm, 5.30pm and 7pm shows. Family tickets (from £44 for two adults, two children) are available.

More details are available from the website at ww.theatreroyalmargate.com or call the box office on $0845\ 1301786$ or $01227\ 787787.$

our competition HORNBY visitor centre

Loads of Hornby goodies

HORNBY is a household name and is famous as the UK brand leader in the model railway hobby.

The company's founder was Frank Hornby (1863-1936) who applied for a patent in 1901 to protect an invention he called 'Improvements in Toy or Educational Devices for Children and Young People'. Nobody then could have imagined how this product would influence the model railway hobby that we know today.

One lucky winner will win a Hornby Blue Rapier set, Scalextric digital lane change set and 12 visitor passes to have a day at the Hornby Visitor Centre at Margate for a fascinating journey through the history of Britain's best-loved toys.

For your chance of winning the great Christmas prize just answer this simple question:

Q) What is the first name of the British F1 driver Hamilton?

- Lewis
- David
- Jason

COMMUTER travel entered a new age during 2009 when the sleek and revolutionary Hitachi Class 395 entered service. This new state-of-the-art train with its twin power source motors quickly became the train of choice for those commuters who use the Southeastern service to London every day, saving those in the extremities of the service as much as 30 minutes or more

The specially prepared three vehicle model in this set is resplendent in the distinctive blue livery of the prototype and is justifiably named the "Blue Rapier". Additional RailRoad coaches are available to extend the train to a full six car unit. Both power and dummy cars have headlights that operate in the direction of travel. The track circuit fits easily on the $1600\,x\,1270cm$ MidiMat and by adding Hornby Track Packs and accessory packs can soon be developed into a very effective model railway layout.

- Driver Trailer (Motorised), Driver Trailer (Non-Motorised), Two open coaches, (NB. Both vehicles have non-working paritographs).

 • Track: 3rd Radius Starter Oval, Track Pack A (with point and buffer stop), P9000WWall Plug
- Transformer, R8250 Train Controller, R8206 Power Track, Hornby MidiMat (1600 x 1270).

THIS set allows you to race up to four cars at the same time (two cars are provided), performing amazing, realistic overtaking and braking manoeuvres. You can switch lanes at the touch of a button to overtake or block your opponent.

This set includes everything you need to get started with Scalextric Digital – it features an oval circuit and comes supplied with two Digital Chip installed cars.

Additional digital cars are available or you can easily convert most standard cars to run on

The super resistant Nissan GT-R and Aston Martin DBR9 feature change pick-ups and the Magnatraction™ system to help them stay on the circuit.

Four cars can be raced simultaneously using the powerbase provided in the set or upgrade to the Advanced Six Car Digital Powerbase (C7042) for six car races plus a host of additional Digital layouts are fully compatible with standard Scalextric track pieces.

Nowhere to run as past comes gunning for assassin Clooney

BY DAMON SMITH

BASED on the Martin Booth novel A Very Private Gentleman, director Anton Corbijn's follow-up to the award-winning Ian Curtis biopic Control is a meticulously crafted portrait of a man of violence trying to escape his grim fate.

Predictably, the antihero can only outrun the past for so long before it catches up with him and demands bloodthirsty redemption.

George Clooney is on screen for almost every frame in the title role, his face etched with weariness as an assassin who has grown tired of always looking over his shoulder.

Without the star power of its leading man, The American would struggle to find an audience outside the arthouse circuit.

It's an unremittingly bleak and slow-burning study of solitude, epitomised by a remarkable and protracted sequence in which the titular character drives towards the white light at the end of a long tunnel.

Corbijn refuses to cut away from inside the car as the white light expands, illuminating the driver until the entire screen is filled with blinding white.

Following a bungled assassination attempt in Sweden, hitman Jack (George Clooney) decides to abandon the killing game once and for all. He phones handler Pavel (Johan Leysen), who suggests that Jack should lay low in the Italian town of Castelvecchio.

"Don't talk to anyone and, above all, don't make any friends. You used to know that," scolds Pavel.

The hit man drives to the remote community and on the spur of the moment disobeys orders and sets up camp in nearby Castel Del

By day, Jack keeps himself busy by constructing a custom-made weapon for mysterious client Mathilde (Thekla Reuten).

By night, he enjoys the carnal delights of local prostitute, Clara (Violante Placido). As Jack's paranoia takes hold, he seeks counsel from local holy man, Father Benedetto (Paolo Bonacelli). "A man can be rich if he has God in his heart," contends the priest.

don't think God is interested in me, Father," mocks Jack, fearing he is well past the point of no return.

The American is an engrossing character study, enlivened by explosions of violence including a night-time car chase that is as close as the film strays to an action set-piece.

Corbijn makes excellent use of the stunning European locations and keeps himself, and us, amused with interesting shots.

Thus, the throwaway image of a train arriving at a platform in Rome is captured as a reflection in one of the station display boards. In the absence of bright colours in the film's palette, Clooney sparks a dazzling screen chemistry, in very different ways, with Placido and Bonacelli, the latter wearing his dog collar with conviction.

"You are American. You think you can escape history," laments Father Benedetto.

As Jack discovers, there is no escape.

PERIOD DRAMA: Andrew Buchan stars as the engaging barrister William Garrow

YOUR TV REVIEW GARROW'S LAW: Sunday, 9pm, BBC1

IF you have been missing your weekly Sunday evening hit of high period drama after the conclusion of ITVs hit show Downton Abbey, you can now breathe easy

The good old BBC has dutifully replaced Downton, in exactly the same 9pm pre-work stress busting slot, with another hour long ode to times past. But unlike ITV's genial offering, which peddles history as a side order to drama, frocks and country piles, Garrow's Law tells the story of seminal events in the criminal justice system.

It follows the life of William Garrow (Andrew Buchan), a dashing young barrister kicking up a storm in the Old Bailey with his progressive views about justice and equality.

It seems Garrow, who later went on to be a judge and solicitor general for England and Wales, was the man who coined the phrase "innocent until proven guilty", used as a mantra in legal trials to this day. He also championed the adversarial system of justice still practised in courts today, where both the prosecution and the defence have their say in court.

BY JENNY ARMSTRONG

As one would expect, Garrow's Law includes its fair share of court scenes with judges and barristers in full fig, as well as gasps and shouts from the public gallery rendered unlikely by their frequency and volume.

And they are great cases too - ones with shocking messages about the way justice was conducted and what used to be illegal.

In one case the captain of a slave ship is standing trial for insurance fraud because he threw 50 of his slaves overboard on false pretences, but the act is not treated as murder.

But court does not dominate the programme. There is a love interest in the form of the delicious Lady Sarah (Lyndsey Marshal), pretty frocks, big houses and several other story lines to keep the interest going. Sadly, Garrow's Law does not glide through the period as effortlessly as Downton did. The budget is clearly lower, the cast not as stellar and some of the sets come off a bit more Blackadder than Bronte. And as this is now the second series of Garrow's Law, a lot of back story is assumed in terms of the relationship between Garrow and Lady Sarah, which adds a mite of confusion.

But all in all it is a fair replacement to Downton and far more educational to boot.

Christmas made for Bad Manners

BAD BOYS: Buster and the gang are bringing their Christmas tour to the Quarterhouse

BY SIMON ROBINSON

MY PARENTS were wrong bad manners should not be forcibly discouraged, rather actively encouraged.

Sure, talking with your mouth full is disgusting, talking while someone else is speaking is obnoxious and those animals who stubbornly refuse to punctuate their utterings with neither 'please' nor 'thankyou' deserve to

But bad manners are still a-ok in my book.

After all, how can you dislike one of the 1980s most widely-known two-tone acts, famed for hits such as Lip Up Fatty, My Girl Lollipop and the Can Can?

I'll accept that The Specials and Madness hold a larger chunk of the genre's place in my heart, but hearing Buster Bloodvessel and his boys never fails to lighten the mood of this hardened-hack.

So imagine my Christmas Day Scrooge epiphany-esque delight when I learned Bad Manners were playing a festive gig at The Quarterhouse in Folkestone next

I was overjoyed.

A Quarterhouse spokesman was equally buoyant.

He said: "Buster Bloodvessel and his band of merry men -BAD MANNERS are joining us as part of their Special Christmas Tours, and they're not leaving til you've skanked like Santa Claus.

"Having played a fair bit locally, the band's live support around here remains second-tonone, as proven by their gig at this years Lounge On The Farm festival, drawing a crowd just as big as that of the headline act Toots & the Maytals. And they put on just as good a show, if not better, to match it." Support on the night comes from Max Splodge, hero of Splodgenessabounds and Two UPLOAD YOUR MUSIC VIDEOS TO BROADCAST ON OUR WEBSITE @

BIG MOMENT: Tennis ace Rafa Nadal poses for a photograph with his hero, Minnie Mouse, on a recent visit to Disneyland Paris

Christmas magic is bigger and better at Disneyland

■ BY TOM WILKINSON

FALLING snow, a parade of princesses and a lollipop the size of a dinner plate my three-year-old thought her Christmas had come early at Disneyland Paris, and perhaps it had.

The giant resort stretches out the festive period from the first weekend in November to January, with a spectacular show of glitz, glamour and razzmatazz, enough to warm the heart of this old Scrooge.

It's impossible not to get carried away with the fun when you see it through the eyes of a mesmerised daughter, who could not stop beaming after meeting Mickey Mouse and Disney's newest heroine Rapunzel, whose movie is not even out yet.

Rosie and I travelled to Disneyland Paris for a weekend break from St Pancras International Soon we were at Marne la Vallee station, practically on the doorstep of the two theme parks and retail village.

Our Hotel New York was a couple of minutes' walk away, and we swiftly checked in next to the huge Christmas tree in the lobby

But that tree was dwarfed by the 24-metre tall, 24-tonne pine that Disney unveiled at the start of its Christmas celebrations.

The tree, in the square of Main Street USA, boasts almost 500 bulbs, and the star at the top is lit every night in a charming ceremony. Disney doesn't really do darkness, as more than a million lights illuminate the Town Square, Main Street and Sleeping Beauty's Castle over Christmas.

Main Street is the venue for the Dreams of Christmas Parade, when all your favourite cartoon heroes pass before your eyes on floats, in an all-singing, all-dancing spectacular.

Tom Wilkinson was a guest of Disneyland Paris which offers three-day packages via Eurostar in December from £412 per adult and £178 per child (7-11), and £65 per child (4-5, travel only). Under-7s stay and play free until December 31 Package including two nights' B&B at Disney's Hotel New York and three-day hopper tickets for Disneyland Park and Walt Disney Studios Park. Same package at Disney's Hotel Santa Fe from £287 per adult, £178 per child. Disneyland Paris reservations: 0844 800 8111 and www.disneylandparis.com

It proved to be a highlight for my little one, and for hundreds if not thousands of others who lined the parade route to get a good view.

When the float carrying all the princesses, including her all-time favourites Jasmine (from Aladdin) and Ariel (from the Little Mermaid), arrived, Rosie's eyes were on stalks.

For Christmas, Santa has been invited to set up his workshop, and children drop off letters for him.

There was so much going on, it would be easy to miss something great. Luckily, Rosie was too small for some of the more scary rides, as we could never have crammed everything in.

When we weren't star-spotting tennis ace Rafa Nadal was visiting when we were there - Rosie and I tackled as many rides as we could. Her undoubted favourite was a gentle boat ride called It's A Small

World, which takes the visitor on a five-minute trip round the globe, populated with dancing dolls

Over in the neighbouring Walt Disney Studios Park, Rosie loved the recent Slinky Dog Zigzag ride, for novice rollercoaster riders, and the Aladdin-themed Flying Carpets Over Agrabah, where you can make your carpet rise and fall as it spins.

Some rides get very busy, but quieten in the final hour of opening, as visitors with younger children leave French and English and even the shows are bilingual.

As Santa waved us off, my daughter did not bat an eyelid when he wished us both a "Goodnight" and a "Bonne soiree".

Well, that's the magic of Disney.

Turbocharged Mondeo fuelling the fightback

FORD'S updated Mondeo line-up features a new hi-tech 1.6-litre turbocharged petrol EcoBoost engine.

It's part of a fightback by petrol against diesel through sporty performance, but with better economy and emissions than before.

This new 160PS (158bhp) 1.6 unit with a six-speed manual gearbox can average more than 40mpg and emits 158g CO2/km.

Its diesel rival, the 2.0TDCi, delivers more than 50mpg and 139g/km CO2, but offers little extra on company car tax or acceleration, and is £1,000 dearer.

Mazda hatches diesel option for New Year

MAZDA has given its family hatchback Mazda3 model a New Year boost, with power, emissions and economy improvements to the 1.6 diesel (from £16,505).

Arriving in January, this model meets more stringent emissions regulations and features a new six-speed manual gearbox. It should further drive Dartford-based

It should further drive Dartford-based Mazda UK's ambitions in fleet sales.

Low emissions allow it to escape road

Low emissions allow it to escape road tax in year one and incur just £30 a year thereafter. It also averages in the mid-60s for mpg.

Desirable Peugeot star coupé boosts ratings

PEUGEOTS stunning RCZ Coupé has confirmed its desirability by outperforming used car valuations from market watchers at CAP.

Fifteen examples of the new sporting icon, launched this summer, averaged 103 per cent of expected valuations at auction.

Bidding to secure this desirable stock, Peugeot dealers even went to £23,500 for a flagship example – 111 per cent of the CAP forecast. This is no surprise; the RCZ is good to drive, economical and affordable – new or secondhand.

CONTENDER: Volvo's S60 will give BMW's 3-Series a run for its money in the driving department – and anyone along for the ride can luxuriate in its first-class cabin comforts

Proper driver's car your passengers will love too

THE all-new S60 was hyped as the Volvo to finally challenge the ubiquitous BMW 3-Series in the junior executive car race.

But it was never going to be quite like that, since the Swedish brand has retained the front-driven layout of the previous car, while the German star stands by the rear-wheel drive that has made its fortune.

But this second generation S60 does offer excellent reasons to weigh its virtues against those of the BMW when company car choosers – likely to account for most sales – start their next bout of head-scratching.

For it appears more compact than the previous generation S60 and follows the vogue for four-door coupé styling, while truly delivering in the handling department.

The ride feels pliant and copes well with rural roads still scarred by last winter and yet the S60 (from £23,295) feels remarkably taut on the bends, while the steering is well-weighted and delivers excellent feedback. Some will still prefer the BMW's balance and even tauter ride, but they risk being selfish.

The Volvo is a driver's car, too, but a nicer car for passengers. And this also applies to cabin ambiance, which is first class.

Refinement is generally good at all speeds and particularly on motorways, though Volvo's five-cylinder diesel sounded raucous under pressure in our high-spec SE Lux review car.

Nevertheless, the popular D5 is well-matched to the new S60 with the 202bhp output delivering loads of low-down power for both press-on and lazy motoring situations and helped by a light and well-spaced six-speed gearbox allowing an average mpg of well over 50.

Even the all-new five-cylinder 163bhp 2.0-litre D3 engine has to work hard to better that.

The new $60 may be specified with a ground-breaking pedestrian detection package, which can stop a collision with a pedestrian up to 21mph, and dramatically reduce speed above that, with potentially life-saving consequences, but will people really cough up an extra £1,350 for such a selfless feature?

Standard S60 kit is generous and includes electronic climate and cruise controls, colour screen for the 'infotainment' system, steering wheel audio controls, alloys and leather-clad wheel and gearshift.

Estate agents welcome new licensing scheme

A NEW licensing scheme for estate agents is to be launched, which experts say will lead to a rise in standards in the business

According to the National Association of Estate Agents (NAEA), most estate agents are reputable, but anyone can start up as an estate agent in the UK without qualifications or formal checks.

The new scheme was described by housing minister, Grant Shapps, as a symbolic moment, while the NAEA said it hopes the scheme will represent honesty for agents.

The launch of the scheme means an estate agent will need to have the necessary level of professional indemnity insurance, be bound by the NAEA agents' rules of conduct and commit to undertaking 12 hours of training on the latest developments every year.

latest developments every year.

Those who are found to be breaking the rules could end up at a tribunal, or thrown out of the scheme.

Peter Bolton King, chief executive of the NAEA, said: "From today, estate agency in the UK is a two-tiered industry – those agents who are licensed and those who are not.

"I think the public will welcome the distinction, and I believe that this move will raise standards across the industry."

Elderly forced to sell up to pay for care homes

SOME 20,000 pensioners across the UK are being forced to sell their homes to pay for residential care every year.

According to a recent survey, the number of elderly property owners having to sell up so they can go into a care home stands at almost 60 per day; a third of those funding their own care end up without a house. This is an increase of 17 per cent since 2005.

The recent cuts to local authority budgets mean that this situation is unlikely to improve. Furthermore, FirstStop Advice states that care home fees have risen by more than 20 per cent over the past five years – making the current average £25,896.

Those who don't have savings or property to sell get their care paid for by the state.

This has sparked anger among many, who argue that the system is unfair and makes lifelong saving pointless, as well as meaning that families won't receive any inheritance.

Make most of interest rates, before they rise

BY NICK AMES

INTEREST rates on mortgages are set to increase, and cheap mortgages are unlikely to stick around for long, according to the consultancy Ducalian.

Research by Sainsbury's Home Insurance revealed that the cost of running a home had fallen by almost 14 per cent in the past two years, and now stands at around £8,059 a year.

Timothy Lambert, head of consulting at Ducalian, said that most people would be rather surprised by the figures.

rather surprised by the figures.

However, he said: "Lots of local authorities have frozen council tax and some boroughs such as Hammersmith & Fulham have actually lowered them, year on year."

Mr Lambert went on to say that the main reason was that mortgages were currently chea for many, which "vastly sways" the statistics.

"But rates will rise over the course of the next few years as interest rates rise and cheaper products that run for a fixed period come to an end." he warned.

The annual cost of running a home, estimated by Sainsbury's Home Insurance, equates to £155 a week, or £22.08 a day, per household.

In 2008, household expenses were found to be almost £1,300 higher, at £9,324 a year.

Meanwhile the market continues to be uncertain.

Housebuilder Taylor Wimpey said it had rousefulider laylor wimpey said it had experienced a homebuyer slowdown, as a result of the Government's spending cuts, which it claims has deterred potential buyers.

Its comments echo those of Persimmon, who said there was little evidence of the traditional autumn period, which usually sees families flock to new housing developments as the school summer holidays end.

However, Taylor Wimpey, which is the UK's second largest homebuilder by volume, said it expects annual profit at the higher end of estimates, boosted by "stable" trading, and an agreement reached on a new £950 million credit facility.

The company, which was formed by the merger of Taylor Woodrow and George Wimpey, said: "We expect to enter 2011 with a solid order book, and we remain focused on our strategy of maximising margins and returns, rather than looking to accelerate volume growth."

Many housebuilders have expressed their concern that the ongoing lack of mortgage availability, particularly to first-time buyers, continues to be a "major obstacle" and is holding back the recovery of the housing market.

It's curtains for wasted energy

RESIDENTS of period properties are being told they can reduce their energy bills by closing their curtains or shutters at dusk

Researchers claim it could be as effective as fitting double glazing and lead to significant savings.

The World Heritage Trust has been using thermal imaging cameras to show residents of old and new homes how best to cut their bills.

The project has demonstrated a traditional, decidedly low-tech approach can be highly effective.

Windows with the shutters and curtains closed show up in the images in a deep blue colour, demonstrating little heat is escaping.

Windows with the shutters and curtains open burn bright, in oranges and reds, showing that much more heat and money is being wasted.

The team behind the project said other traditional techniques were valuable too, and anyone living in a period property should not overlook the importance of draught excluders.

Chiara Ronchini, energy efficiency officer for the trust, said: "We know that improving energy efficiency in historic buildings is very important if we're to reduce carbon emissions and alleviate fuel poverty.

"There are issues, of course, with historic buildings, but they are so well designed that they just need a little push to make sure that they are performing as well as the most modern buildings.

"The thermal imaging exercise really proved that very simple measures, like closing shutters at night or using full-length curtains, can have a dramatic effect and make a dramatic improvement on the amount of heat being lost through the windows."

If you would like to join our teachers at Bradstow, we are confident that:

- It will probably be the hardest teaching job you will ever have.
- It will certainly be the most satisfying.

Bradstow is an exciting and unique residential school for children between the ages of 5 & 19, set in 13 acres of parkland just a few hundred metres from the sandy beaches of Broadstairs. We seek to meet the needs of children with autism and severe learning difficulties, many of whom have associated challenging behaviours. We have achieved international recognition for Leadership and our developments in Communication and Behaviour Management.

Professional and personal qualities in this specialised and challenging field are very important. Experience, whilst helpful is not essential. Extensive and on-going training and support of all staff is at the core of the success of the school. All teachers are fully trained and supported in Gentle Teaching, TEACCH, Prospect PBS, PECS and other Augmentative Communication Systems as well as being provided with other specialist skills. You will also be supported and encouraged to further develop your skills and knowledge by undertaking further Degree and Diploma studies

OFSTED 2009 said,

- "Bradstow is an outstanding school"
- "The curriculum and the quality of teaching and support are exceptional" "It is to the tremendous credit of a highly skilled and well-qualified team of teachers and support staff that they enable pupils to overcome and cope with the substantial learning and emotional barriers that they face'
- "Bradstow is a very complex organisation and a centre of excellence in its own field"

If you would like to join our team, and help us to continue to transform the lives of these children and their families, give us a call. Be in no doubt, this is a challenging working environment for which you will need to be committed to the needs of the child and the school. In return we offer a highly rewarding and satisfying career, with quite a bit of fun thrown in as well!

MISTAKES: Curtis Robinson is part of the Margate defence

QUESTIONS have been raised over the desire among Margate's squad after manager Iain O'Connell watched a "shambolic" defensive display against Tooting & Mitcham.

The Blues boss was so disturbed by his side's second-half capitulation at Hartsdown Park that he could not bring himself to celebrate James Pinnock's late strike which levelled the game at 3-3.

Having conceded 12 goals in their last four outings, the Gate must react fast if they are to take anything from this Saturday's game against Carshalton

Athletic, managed by O'Connell's predecessor, Mark Butler.

"It was shambolic and a few of the players need to look at themselves and ask if they're doing enough," O'Connell said. "We've gone from having one of the best defences in the league to a side conceding three goals per game and it's something we've got to sort out very quickly.

"There was no sign [at half-time] of what was about to happen, but I told the boys to make sure we didn't let them back into the game and get an early goal – which is exactly what they did.

"It was poor defending all round, we were totally poor all the way through.

"It still feels like a defeat and the equaliser was probably the first time I've not celebrated a goal because we went from being so on top to literally losing the game. It was unbelievable, a real game of two halves; we could have been four up at half-time."

Blues travel to Carshalton on Saturday eight points adrift of the play-offs and the same number of points from the bottom four.

DESIRE: Broadstairs have ambitious five-year plan

Broadstairs target Kent League status

A NEW football power is rising in Thanet as Broadstairs Football Club look to put themselves on the map and secure Kent League status within five years.

Previously called Lesters Elite, Broadstairs are playing in the Kent County League for the first time this season and manager Gary Beckett has made no secret of the club's lofty ambitions.

From attracting quality players to finding a home ground of their own, Beckett is looking to turn the club into a serious force and provide an alternative for football fans in the area.

He said: "I want us to become the third team in Thanet that people recognise alongside Margate and Ramsgate. For now, it's a case of getting through this season and proving that Thanet can support three football clubs. With the financial recession, the situation means players are playing for nothing. People are dropping down from the likes of Hythe, Ramsgate and Margate because they're working overtime in the week, so we should be picking up a few players.

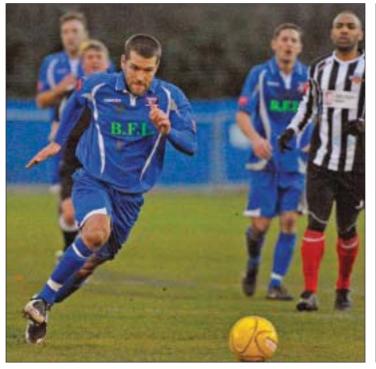

Broadstairs have made a moderate start in Division Two East of the County League, sitting eighth after Saturday's 5-2 defeat at home to Lydd Town.

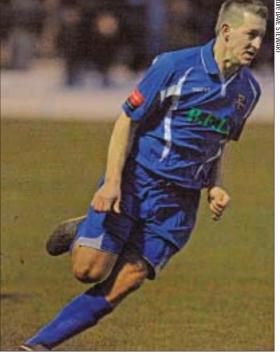

The club is based at the Jackey Bakers field in Ramsgate, but Beckett accepts they will have to move before their dreams of promotion can ever materialise.

Anyone interested in Broadstairs FC should contact Beckett at manager@broadstairsfc.co.uk.

ON FIRE: Despite the sterling efforts of strikers James Pinnock, left, who netted a brace and Shaun Welford, right, Margate let slip a two-goal lead at home to Tooting & Mitcham

Change of formation fails to fill cracks in Margate defence

MARGATE'S defensive frailties show no signs of disappearing after the Blues let slip a two-goal lead to trail Tooting & Mitcham before James Pinnock's last-gasp equaliser.

Pinnock scored at the end of each half for the home side with Shaun Welford also on target, but the Gate's attacking capabilities are merely papering over the cracks of their weaknesses at the back

Iain O'Connell's side have now conceded 12 goals in their last four outings and with three tricky fixtures still to come before Christmas, they must address the problem quickly to keep their play-off dream alive.

There was a change of formation and personnel on Saturday as O'Connell reverted to a 5-3-2 system with Kane Harrington replacing the

John Keister and Craig Cloke were also included, with Tommy Osborne and Dan Stubbs making way.

Both sides had their chances in a lively opening, with James Rogers going closest when he met Curtis Robinson's cross and delivered a shot which Jamie Butler had to turn round the post. Pinnock then fired in a snapshot which hit the crossbar, and Jay Saunders shot just wide before Billy Crooks sent a free header wide for

However, the home side made their dominance count six minutes before the interval when a Craig Cloke throw set up Rogers, and when his shot was blocked on the line, Welford tapped home his first goal since returning

Margate then had shouts for a penalty waved away when Pinnock tumbled in the box, but the same player made it 2-0 on the stroke of halftime with a fierce drive into the bottom corner.

In the second-half, Tooting raised their tempo and the Blues were unable to live with the visitors as they began to dictate play.

Crook reduced the arrears to 2-1 when he turned home a Jason Henry cross and Jordan Wilson shot just wide as the Terrors went in search of a leveller.

Parity was restored 17 minutes from time when Kieran Hughes-Mason added the finishing touch to a Tooting counter-attack and former Margate striker Rob Haworth made it 3-2 from a corner six minutes later.

Stunned by the riposte, the hosts looked a beaten side, but they rallied in stoppage-time and after Robinson had tested Butler, Pinnock applied the final touch to a long ball which Aaron Goode failed to cut out.

Margate are back in action on Saturday when they travel to Carshalton Athletic.

Catalogue of injuries sees Carlier praying for snow

THANET Wanderers head coach Tom Carlier has an injury crisis to manage as his side prepares for two of the most crucial games of their season.

Defeat at Hove on Saturday continued Thanet's dreadful away record, but they return to home comforts this weekend as basement club Tunbridge Wells provide the opposition at St Peter's.

With a trip to struggling Wimbledon to follow seven days later, Wanderers could leave themselves in a healthy position heading into their local derby with Dover before the Christmas break.

However, with several key players ruled out until the New Year, Carlier admits he would not be dismayed to see the weather intervene over the next fortnight to give his squad some recovery time.

He said: "Until last week I was looking forward to them [the games] so we could put ourselves in a position where we'll be safe in this league, but now I'm hoping it snows because we'd have four or five weeks to get the injured players back.

"The next two games are dangerous because if we drop the ball we'll have some serious thinking to do.

"However, I'm not thinking that far ahead, I'm thinking about Tunbridge Wells, the next 80 minutes and how we can take them apart all over the park."

With four wins from five home games so far, Wanderers should continue the trend

Carlier is down to the bare bones of his squad with back-row forwards Dave Lemon and Simon Harris the latest absentees through injury and work respectively.

Also in the treatment room are Kris

Finneran (bruised sternum), Richard Eldridge (split eye), Mickey Capeling (fractured eye socket) and Dan Hamilton and Mark Cooper (both shoulder).

Having seen his side throw away a promising half-time position to fall away to a 43-20 defeat at Hove on Saturday, Carlier reiterated the urgency for Wanderers to address their awful away record.

"We're like a good wine, delicious, but we don't travel well," he said.

"It's a fact and we've got to shift that. To be a good side, we need to be consistently good, not occasionally brilliant.

"It was a very poor game between two very poor sides [on Saturday], who seemed to leave their attacking abilities in the changing room.

"As soon as they had the ball in their hands we seemed incapable of tackling them and it was almost embarrassing."

Frozen pitch delays Rams attempts to climb league

FOOTBALI

FOUR points from two games against Sussex opposition is the target for Ramsgate as they look to brush aside the frustration of a weekend without football.

The Rams were due to travel to Dulwich Hamlet on Saturday, but a frozen pitch in south London halted any hopes of building on their midweek win at Whyteleafe.

Desperate to climb away from the lower reaches of Ryman South, Ramsgate now turn their attentions to a home game against Eastbourne Town on Saturday, before they make the long trip to Bognor Regis next Tuesday.

Assistant manager Richard Langley said: "Eastbourne are doing much better this season, but we're at home and not doing badly ourselves so we'll be looking to take four points from the two games. Our target at the moment is to beat Eastbourne and take a draw at Bognor.

"It would have been nice to continue the run against Dulwich. We were going to meet for the coach at 11.30am so the players were all at the ground, which was in perfect condition.

"It was frustrating we didn't have the game, but it was good to do something with the players and sometimes it gives you an edge if other teams' pitches are frozen."

Langley confirmed Jack Smelt will continue to keep goal in place of Brett Mills, with manager Jim Ward afforded the luxury of picking from a fully-fit squad.

Eastbourne, relegation strugglers last season, are without a win in their last six games, but they start Saturday's clash two points ahead of the Rams in lower mid-table.

GOAL THREAT: Dan McGrath has been massive success

Cliftonville targeting yet another promotion

AS CLIFTONVILLE'S meteoric rise up the hockey pyramid continues, captain Adam Sidders insists his side are ready to make the step up into the regional game.

The postponement of Saturday's game against title rivals Burnt Ash saw Ville drop into second behind Tunbridge Wells, but Sidders' team remain the only unbeaten side in Kent Division One. Back-to-back promotions do not appear to have come too soon for Cliftonville, who have taken the division by storm and are already looking to the next level.

"We've had promotion two years on the trot and now we're pushing for a third which would be unprecedented at the club," Sidders said.

"It would be a big achievement if we pull it off and we're fairly comfortable in this league, as the table reflects. If we go up again it's regional hockey which would mean more commitment, but they [the players] all want it."

Sidders attributes Ville's success to a combination of quality arrivals and the rapid rise of the club's younger members.

Dan McGrath, an attacking midfielder, had a spell with Maidstone and has offered Ville a real goal threat, while in centre-back Seth Simmons the club have a player-coach with National League experience.

Cliftonville travel to Holcombe 3rds this weekend.
